Beds of Our Giant Darwin Tulips

Darwin Tulips

Lovely Pastel Shades in a Full Range of Colors

Darwin Tulips are distinguished by their lovely soft pastel shades, in a full range of colors, and large, cup-shaped flowers of heavy substance, held erect on tall, strong stems. The height varies from 24 to 30 inches or more, according to variety, undoubtedly the most popular of May-flowering Tulips.

Darwin Tulips are adaptable for any garden purpose—planted in clumps of 10, 25, or 50 of separate varieties in the flower border, in front of and between shrubs, in beds of solid colors or combinations in the flower garden, and for cutting.

Generally speaking, the bulbs should be planted about 6 inches deep and the same distance apart. Sprinkle bone meal over the ground before planting, do not use any chemical fertilizer or fresh manure. Do not plant continuously in the same soil year after year, this will lead to failure—Tulips prefer fresh soil.

After the ground is frozen, a mulch or cover of peat moss or other material to a depth of one-half inch may be applied (although not essential). A heavier cover would encourage field mice. Plant bulbs during October and November; the flowering period is during May.

TRIVETT'S ENGLISH Cottage Tulips

Including LILY-FLOWERED and HYBRID Sorts

English Cottage Tulips are especially desirable because they furnish the spring garden with gay, bright colors, golden yellow, lemon-yellow, orange, scarlet, crimson, pink, white, etc., blooming in May with the Darwins and Breeders. Plant the bulbs 6 inches deep and 6 inches apart or 3 inches apart if in clumps. Use sand liberally under and around the bulbs. Do not use chemical fertilizer.

English Cottage Tulips do not grow so tall as the Darwins and Breeders and are therefore valuable for planting in front, using the light colors for contrast with the dark shades.

Those marked "Hybrid" are larger and taller, resembling Darwins rather than the true English Cottage Tulips.

Iris

Ideal Greenhouse and Frame Cut Flowers

Dutch or Holland Iris

Delivery during September-October

This bulbous type of Iris has become exceedingly popular for greenhouse culture as cut flowers, and for outdoor planting. Their ease of culture and charming clear colors together with strong, wiry stems, make them valuable for cutting and decorative purposes.

They resemble the "Spanish Iris," but are more vigorous in growth, have larger flowers, and bloom about two weeks earlier. For indoor blooming plant in deep flats, grow in cool temperature, and do not allow to become dry. For outdoors plant the bulbs about 3 or 4 inches deep and 2 or more inches apart. They prefer sandy soil but will succeed in almost any soil.

Special Pre-Cooled Stock

Wedgewood, Pre-Cooled. Specially prepared bulbs of this splendid forcing Iris, which can easily be brought into bloom by Christmas and even much earlier. The bulbs must be potted or planted immediately upon receipt. Allow at least 4 inches for root growth. They should be buried in a cool, shady place or root cellar, at not more than 50 degrees temperature. As soon as the warm autumn days are over they can be brought into the greenhouse and grown at 55 degrees, gradually raising to 60 degrees night temperature. Never allow them to get dry.

TRIVETT'S SUPREME QUALITY Narcissus Polyanthus

Bunch Narcissus for Indoor Culture Only

—or for the Southern States

For delivery from September onwards. Do not plant too early. Most bulb experts now recommend that these Narcissus should not be planted until the latter part of October. Always keep well-watered and the temperature around 60 degrees. Plant every 2 weeks during the autumn and early winter for succession of bloom. This type of Narcissus may be grown in flats or pots of soil, or in bowls of pebbles and water. The main point is to establish a strong root growth before forcing into flower.

Unlike other Narcissus, they cannot be planted outside after forcing, with any degree of success, except south of the Carolinas.

FOR INDOOR CULTURE ONLY

Trivett's Giant Paper-White. This large flowered sort is a great improvement over the regular type, producing larger bunches and larger individual flowers. They can be had in bloom from Christmas to Easter by planting in succession, and are of the easiest possible culture in soil or pebbles and water.

Narcissi - Daffodil Bulbs

For Greenhouse, Garden and Naturalizing

Special!

Pre-Cooled Narcissi

for

Christmas and New Year Flowering

The varieties listed under this heading are the most suitable for early forcing and the bulbs are especially prepared and kept by us in cool storage. We ship them during the first or second week of October, depending upon weather conditions. These bulbs must be potted or planted immediately upon receipt by the customer, and buried in a shady, cool place, and covered with about 4 inches of soil and 8 inches of straw or hay, or they may be placed in a cool bulb cellar, but the temperature must not be allowed to get over 50 degrees. Watering should be watched carefully, as they must not be allowed to get dry. The all-important thing is not to expose the bulbs to a higher temperature than 50 degrees before planting, and while they are rooting. The proper time to bring them into the greenhouse can best be decided by growth and root development. They must be well-rooted and most important of all the flower-bud inside the foliage must be entirely free and out of the neck of the bulb. Most varieties should have reached that stage by the middle of November or December 1st. When brought in they may safely be forced at 60 degrees right from the start and should bloom in 3 to 5 weeks.

In the following varieties only:

Pre-Cooled, King Alfred. The finest and most satisfactory golden yellow Trumpet Daffodil for early forcing. Our special Pre-Cooled Stock may be flowered from the latter part of December, through Christmas and the New Year holidays.

The numbers following the names are for classification, see page 37.

For Naturalizing, Mass Planting, Etc.

Trivett's Mixture A and Mixture D in a Natural Setting

Trivett's Special Mixtures

The mass planting and naturalizing of Daffodils is a good and permanent investment. They are perfectly hardy, increase from year to year, and are free from attack by mice, etc. Plant them liberally. Place the bulbs in the ground or under the grass $1\frac{1}{2}$ times their own depth and 2 inches or more apart. Do not cut off the foliage until it has turned yellow. Leave the bulbs undisturbed. They should not be lifted unless it is necessary.

TRIVETT'S SELECTED Lilium Candidum

The Popular White Madonna Lily at its Best

Must be Planted in August-September for Spring Flowering

The Candidum Lily is the most popular and widely grown white garden Lily. Unlike other Lilies which can be planted either in the autumn or spring, LILIUM CANDIDUM MUST BE PLANTED DURING LATE SUMMER OR AUTUMN.

The bulbs make a leaf growth during the autumn which dies down with the approach of winter; however, the bulbs are then in a condition to flower in spring.

They should be planted 3 inches deep in good garden soil, and will succeed almost anywhere.

Hardy, Northern Grown Bulbs

Lilium Candidum

For delivery during August-September.

Please state approximate date desired. Place the plants about 12 inches apart and the rows 2 feet apart.

Autumn or Everbearing Strawberries

Everbearing Strawberries are very desirable for prolonging the crop. Our special pot-grown plants of Autumn Strawberries will produce ripe, sweet fruit several weeks after planting.

Ground Cover Plants

Ideal foundation for small bulb plantings

The subjects listed here in addition to being valuable for covering bare ground, where grass or other vegetation will not succeed, also create a splendid base into which many of the smaller bulbs can be planted, such as Botanical Tulips, Narcissi, Crocus, Scillas, Grape Hyacinths, etc. These bulbs call for an evergreen base to properly display their charms, and create a naturalistic picture, also they will have Nature's protection, and be allowed to naturalize themselves undisturbed.

Pachysandra Terminalis

(Pak-i-san-dra term-i-nal-is)

"Japanese Spurge." Invaluable evergreen ground cover plant, about 6 inches high; its foliage resembles our native Laurel, being deep rich green in the shade and light emerald-green in sunny places. Absolutely hardy anywhere in the U. S. A., completely evergreen, disease free, insect free. Thrives equally in dense shade, partial shade, or in full sun. Any kind of soil will do, forms thick mats by means of spreading roots. If quick coverage is desired place plants not more than 6 inches apart. Cover up those bare places where even grass cannot grow—under trees, shrubs, terraces. A beautiful green rug for all difficult places. Wet or dry, warm or cold, shade or sun, anywhere, everywhere.

Hedera Helix

(Evergreen English Ivy)

The well known English Ivy is obtainable from us in a number of types. Their uses are numerous—as a low trimmed hedge, outlining paths, covering stone walls, sundials, embankments, as a general ground cover in semi-shade or shade; in fact, almost all of the uses to which "Pachysandra" may be put except full sunlight.

As a ground cover we recommend the planting of small plants placed about 12 inches apart. They will cover the bare ground quicker and can be clipped better than larger plants. Free from diseases and insect pests.
